Somalia Expelling Soviets

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somalia, angry at the Soviet Union's tilt toward rival Ethiopia, is expelling the Soviet navy from its chief bases on the Horn of Africa and ordering thousands of Soviet advisers out of the East African country, Radio Somalia has announced.

The broadcast Sunday said the Marxist government was also breaking diplomatic relations with Cuba, renouncing the 1974 friendship treaty with the Soviet Union and ordering a reduction in the Soviet Embassy staff in Mogadishu, the Somali capital.

Somalia has been the Soviet Union's chief ally in East Africa since 1969. But recently Moscow has been pouring arms into Ethiopia and denying them to Somalia in an attempt to end the rebellion in Ethiopia's Ogaden region by Somali tribesmen who want to join the territory to neighboring Somalia.

Somalia claims that the Marxist military regime in Addis Ababa is also being aided in the Ogaden war by Cuban troops, a charge which Cuba denies.

Neither Moscow nor Havana had immediate comment on the Somali action. But Somali President Mohammed Siad Barre had repeatedly warned the Russians that the Soviet-Somali alliance was in danger, and the announcement Sunday was no surprise.

It has appeared for some time that the Russians thought either that the Somalis would not go so far or that Ethiopia would prove a more valuable ally. But with much of Ethiopia in revolt and the ruling military clique in Addis Ababa a hotbed of dissension,

Senior Center Step Nearer To Reality

Subsidized rental housing for senior citizens and a senior center in the Logan Elm Village subdivision moved a step closer to reality today.

Guy Leatherwood, president of the board of directors of Pickaway Terrace, announced today that the board has voted to accept a proposal submitted for construction of the housing at a price of $959,900.

Leatherwood noted that acceptance is contingent upon the signing of the contract. Hopefully, construction of the housing will be completed some time next summer.

Leatherwood reported that only one true bid was received when the housing was advertised for bids. Eller Construction Co. submitted a base bid of $1,165,000 at that time, quite a bit over the architect's estimate.

Pickaway Terrace was advised that once the housing project had gone through the bidding process, the members of the board could negotiate without rebidding.

Under the negotiating process, the proposal submitted by Art Homes Inc. was the lowest one received.

Today Pickaway County Commissioners authorized the architects of the senior center, Weatherby, Goodman Associates, to inform Eller Construction of their intent to sign a contract for the senior center.

The housing is being constructed by Pickaway Terrace Inc. with a FHA loan while the center is being built with a federal grant.

Commissioners emphasized that no county money is being used for construction.

the Kremlin may have made a serious miscalculation.

Information Minister Abdulqadir Salad Hasan announced that the Soviet military and technical experts in Somalia, who are believed to number between 3,000 and 4,000, had seven days to leave the country. He said the Cuban embassy staff had to get out in 48 hours.

Abdulqadir said Soviet use of Somali facilities "on land and sea" would end immediately.

The Soviet navy's Indian Ocean fleet has been using the port of Berbera, on the Gulf of Aden in northern Somalia, and Kismayu, on the southern coast. Western experts say the Soviets also had missile storage silos at Berbera. Somalia exchanged these facilities for Soviet weapons and training for the Somali armed forces.

Somalia denies that its army is fighting in the Ogaden desert of southeast Ethiopia although it admits to arming and aiding the rebels, who are Somali tribesmen. The rebels now are believed to control 90 per cent of the territory and need only the cities of Diredawa and Harar to drive the Ethiopian army from the region. But some foreign military experts believe the recent Soviet aid may enable the Ethiopians to regain control.

Siad Barre has asked the United States, Britain and France as well as the anti-Communist governments of Saudi Arabia and Iran for arms. The United States said it would not send weapons to Somalia while the Ogaden war continued, but France, Iran and Saudi Arabia are reported to have responded more favorably.

Britain's Firemen Walk Out On Nationwide Strike Today

LONDON (AP) — Britain's firemen walked out of their station houses today in an unprecedented nationwide strike for more pay. Union leaders claimed the action was nearly total.

But the first few hours of the strike brought less than the normal number of emergency calls, and officials said a hastily trained backup force of servicemen and civilian volunteers was coping well.

The strike was the most serious challenge so far of the Labor government's determination to maintain its 10 percent, anti-inflation ceiling on annual wage increases, now in its third year.

The firemen, whose weekly pay base averages $115, are demanding a 30 percent increase.

Richard Foggie, assistant general secretary of the Fire Brigades Union, claimed nearly 100 percent of the nation's 43,000 firemen were supporting the strike, expected to last at least a week.

"It is solid," he said. "The British fire service is in limbo. We have only a handful of firemen showing reluctance to join the strike. This is a massive response."

But officials in special fire control centers around the country said citizens were apparently taking extra precautions and that there were relatively few emergency calls.

Royal Air Force personnel manning one of the 850 25-year-old fire trucks pressed into service were summoned to extinguish a burning washing machine at Weston-super-Mare near Bristol in western England. The old fire engines have been dubbed "green goddesses" because of their olive-drab color.

The makeshift fire force, most of whose members have only a week's training, were not using Britain's regular fire stations and modern equipment because the Labor government wants to avoid confrontations with the picket lines thrown up outside the fire houses.

The London fire control center, set up in the Greater London Council's emergency flood center, reported emergency calls were considerably less than on an average day when London's 6,500-man fire brigade normally deals with 250 to 300 calls.

"The signs are that people are definitely being more careful with fire precautions," a brigade spokesman said.

Home Secretary Merlyn Rees in a broadcast Sunday night said the government is not seeking confrontations over its pay policy that "is for the good of us all," but it will not back down.

Rees said he could not believe "that anyone, for example, would allow children's and old people's homes to burn down around their occupants." But Michael Brown, one of the firemen at the station that protects Windsor Castle, told reporters: "We won't turn out even if the queen is trapped in the castle."

The biggest danger appeared to be in strife-torn Northern Ireland, where security authorities expected the Irish Republican Army to intensify its firebomb campaign to wreck the province's commercial life. Five bombs exploded in Belfast Sunday night, gutting at least three buildings. Four other bombs were defused.

In London, where the force of 6,500 firemen get an average of 700 calls a day, only 1,600 inexperienced troops were on call. Most of them had only a few days' training in firefighting.

"We can't take over fire stations and their equipment to avoid confrontation with firemen's pickets. We'll just have to make do with what we've got," said Maj. Charles Fenwick of the Grenadier Guards, commanding 300 army firefighters at London's Chelsea Barracks.

What they had was a fleet of 25-year-old civil defense firetrucks brought out of mothballs. They have no radios or sirens and will have to be guided by police cars because most of the soldier-drivers don't know the city's streets.

The government put half-page ads in all major newspapers telling the public what to do in case of fire. "See if you can tackle the fire yourself... but don't risk your life," said the ads.

Families moved out of high-rise apartment houses in Birmingham to keep from being trapped by fire; their elevators were already out due to a month-old strike by maintenance men.

Begin To Visit Sadat In Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin took Anwar Sadat up on his offer to visit Israel and invited the Egyptian president to address the Israeli parliament.

Begin spoke Sunday as bombs killed two Arabs in Jerusalem and as a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization endorsed the recent joint Soviet-American declaration as a basis for a new Geneva peace conference.

"If President Sadat wants an official invitation from me, he has it," Begin told reporters after the weekly meeting of his cabinet. But "this gesture should not be exaggerated; President Sadat has not yet decided to come," Begin added.

Twice last week, Sadat expressed willingness to go to Israel if his trip would give impetus to the Geneva conference he and President Carter are so anxious to have convened this year. But he told visiting U.S. congressmen Saturday that he had not been officially invited.

Sadat also said Saturday he had sent Carter the name of a Palestinian-American professor who would be acceptable to PLO leader Yasser Arafat as the representative of the Palestinians at Geneva. The Israeli Foreign Minister rejected the proposal, but Begin said:

"If it comes to a concrete proposal, connected with a name, we must first hear the name in order to make a decision."

Sadat did not identify the professor but said he was a U.S. citizen.

However, informed sources in Cairo said he was a PLO member, and Begin reiterated Israel's refusal to negotiate with PLO delegates at Geneva.

The document, issued in New York by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, called for resumption of the Geneva talks before the end of the year with Palestinian participation. The declaration did not mention the PLO.

"The minimum basis that the PLO can accept for the participation of the Palestinian people... is the U.S.-Soviet statement," Kamal said.

"We agree to participate in the Geneva peace conference provided U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, in the name of the two superpowers, invites the representatives of the Palestinian people as part of the Arab delegation to the conference," Kamal added.

Marxist Palestinians of the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the two bombs that exploded Sunday in Jerusalem and said they were in retaliation for the Israeli air strikes that killed 110 Palestinians and Lebanese in southern Lebanon last week.

One bomb, in the Old City's Christian quarter, ripped through the top floor of a two-story building, killed an Arab student and wounded four persons. The second bomb exploded about three hours later in the Jewish suburb of Talpiot across the street from a nursery school. An Arab teen-ager was killed and a man was injured.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio laws which prevent disabled workers from collecting benefits and receiving job training at the same time are standing in the way of effective rehabilitation, a state-requested study indicates.

Persons in rehabilitation programs are currently not allowed to receive disability benefits, so motivation is often lacking to overcome injuries and return to work, according to the private study for the Ohio Rehabilitation Study Commission.

If that legal hurdle were removed, the state could establish an effective rehabilitation system by 1980 by adding facilities at nine hospitals which already have programs.

The $48,000 report by Touche Ross & Co. also stated that if the state decides to build new facilities, construction costs would top $36 million.

It suggested creation of a special state fund to pay half a person's claims while the permanently and totally disabled person is in a rehabilitation program for a year or more, either when hospitalized or as an out patient.

Employers who agree to hire the workers part time would be charged half the claim cost, rather than the whole amount, while employers who do not cooperate would have to pay full claim cost.

The study estimated that nearly 1,700 disabled persons would take part each day in such a state program, presuming injury levels and injury types remain about the same.

They would be served by teams of doctors, therapists, rehabilitation nurses, counselors and psychologists at a predicted cost of $10 million in 1980.

In Ohio, the most common injury which prevents work is back injury, but often the ailments can be overcome through treatment or training for low-stress work.

The report, which is being reviewed by state agencies this week, said a key to success of any rehabilitative project is to quickly identify injured workers who can be rehabilitated and returned to work.

It predicted that if the program were successful, workers' compensation costs would decrease since fewer workers would be permanently drawing benefits.

BOSS OF THE YEAR — Freda Collins (left), secretary, presents a plaque to Donna J. Gloyd the Roundtown Chapter National Secretaries "Boss of the Year for 1977". Mrs. Gloyd serves as Operator Services Manager for General Telephone Company in Circleville.

The Roundtown Chapter of National Secretaries Association held its seventh Annual Boss Night Thursday at the Holiday Inn, Chillicothe.

Named "Boss of the Year for 1977" was Donna J. Gloyd, of 5662 St. Paul Road, Ashville. Mrs. Gloyd is the operator services manager for the General Telephone Company office in Circleville.

Mrs. Gloyd is married to building contractor, Stan Gloyd and is the busy mother of two daughters. She has been employed by General Telephone for 16 years beginning her employment in 1961. She was promoted to supervisor in the traffic department in 1964 and worked as acting chief operator and temporary chief operator from 1970-72. She was promoted to her current position in July of this year. Her job includes the supervision of three operator supervisors, one traffic records clerk and 17 operators. She reviews all reports to the general office in Marion and division office in Portsmouth, and serves as personnel director for the entire traffic department.

Donna is a graduate of Walnut Township High School, and has attended several work related schools for General Telephone.

"Boss of the Year" is chosen from detailed resumes submitted by secretaries. The selection is made by a panel of three judges, who read the resumes and make the final selection.

Mrs. Gloyd was selected upon the recommendation of her secretary Freda Collins.

Carter Quietly Gives Aides Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who has quietly given White House aides pay raises of more than 7 percent, is expected to put the presidential chisel to budget requests from other agencies.

Carter is meeting with his top advisers today in the first of three sessions this week to consider money requests for the next fiscal year from seven departments and agencies.

As a candidate, Carter pledged to balance the budget during his first term. He is expected to trim the requests if possible.

The president set aside most of the afternoon for the budget meeting after an Oval Office visit from his cousin, Georgia state Sen. Hugh Carter Sr., and his wife. Their son, Hugh Carter Jr., is special assistant to the president for administration.

Special assistant Carter, whose job is to cut White House waste; budget aide Richard M. Harden, and other senior assistants convinced the president to give pay raises of 7.05 percent to aides making less than $47,500 a year, it was learned Sunday night. Carter set the $47,500 ceiling on the raises.

Aides approaching that salary get only as much as it takes to put them at $47,500, even if it's less than 7.05 percent.

The raises went into effect Oct. 9 without public announcement by the White House.

Last April, Carter gave his White House staff raises of up to 25 percent. They were authorized by Congress under the Federal Pay Comparability Act, which enabled Carter to give increases to other government employees as well.

The act says federal salaries should compare with private pay.

Ohio Manufacturers May Have To Pay Coal Tax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's manufacturers may face a stone wall in their efforts to exempt themselves from a new tax on use of coal headed for a final vote in the legislature this week.

It is contained in a House-approved bill creating an Ohio Department of Energy, and its estimated $13.5 million in annual proceeds would finance the department and get the state actively involved in coal research and demonstration projects, with federal help.

A Senate subcommittee approved the bill Friday after refusing to consider an amendment to exempt manufacturers from the tax, and the legislation goes before the full committee this afternoon.

William J. Costello, a lobbyist for the Ohio Manufacturers Association which asked for the amendment, was rebuffed even by the lone Republican on the three-member subcommittee, Sen. William H. Mussey, R-14 Batavia.

Republicans normally listen to such appeals from the business community.

As proposed by the subcommittee, headed by Sen. Neal F. Zimmers Jr., D-Dayton, the tax, ranging from 15 cents to 40 cents a ton, would apply only to the users of 200 or more tons of coal a year on industries and utilities which use coal for the production of steam or electricity. Residential users would not be affected.

The tax is weighted to encourage the use of Ohio's high sulfur coal, as a prod to utilities and industries to step up their own search for ways in which it can be burned within state and federal emission standards.

The 15-cent rate, for instance, applies to the use of coal with a sulfur content of 1 1/2 percent or more, while 40 cents would apply to each ton with 1/2 percent or less of sulfur, namely out-of-state coal.

Costello, who is expected to take his amendment before the full committee today, contends having the tax apply to industry will hit them with "a double dip," meaning that while the federal government is forcing them to convert to coal from other fuels, utilities serving manufacturers will raise their rates to compensate for the additional taxes they will have to pay.

The steel industry, in particular, will suffer, Costello said, recalling their recent announcement to lay off thousands of workers in Ohio due to the sagging domestic market. "All they need is another kick in the pants," he said.

Under questioning by Mussey and others, Costello estimated manufacturers' share of the $13.5 million in anticipated revenues at $2 million to $3 million.

After his amendment failed to attract favor from Zimmers or Mussey, or the third subcommittee member, Sen. Kinsey Milleson, D-30 Freeport, Mussey said he thinks manufacturers should pay their fair share.

"The utilities shouldn't have to carry this whole burden. This is an industry benefit bill, over the long run," the Clermont County lawmaker said.

The full membership of the Senate and House comes back to Columbus Tuesday for an expected three-day session, returning from a recess that began nearly four weeks ago.

Other than the energy department bill, other major legislation up for possible final action includes a long-debated proposal to repeal Ohio's strike-prohibiting (for public employees) Ferguson Act, and establish collective bargaining procedures for about 510,000 public employees throughout the state.

Action also could come on a House-approved proposal to clarify charitable bingo laws to crack down on organized gamblers currently using loopholes to stage bingo and other gambling under the guise of being charitable organizations.

Cleveland's New Mayor Calls City Progressive

CLEVELAND (AP) — When 31-year-old Dennis Kucinich was sworn in this morning as the nation's youngest big-city mayor he also officially inherited the problems of one of the nation's oldest big cities.

Principally because of his age, Kucinich has been lionized by the media, and he already has shown a promotional flare — both for himself and for his city.

When he appeared on a national television morning program last week, Kucinich was asked how a 31-year-old political maverick could be elected mayor. The boyish-looking Kucinich grinned. "Well, Cleveland's a progressive city you know."

Today, the truck driver's son and former newspaper copy boy became the 52nd chief executive of a city which six years ago elected Carl Stokes as the nation's first black mayor of a big city and which a month ago turned out Ralph J. Perk, the favorite son of white ethnics.

The 5-foot-7 mayor, whom Clevelanders Bob Hope says looks more like the mayor of Boys Town, has a two-year term to make good on a lengthy list of promises he made to solve Cleveland's problems.

He has promised to end tax abatements for businesses, to keep the debt-ridden Municipal Light Co. in city hands, to fix the city's sewers, to hire an additional 200 policemen, to expand the city's port, to revitalize the city's Consumer Protection Department, to establish an urban peace corps, to trim city employees from the payroll, to keep taxes from rising, to keep the budget balanced, to have free downtown bus service and to reopen the observation deck of the Terminal Tower.

Kucinich likes to say that despite the awesome task of turning Cleveland around, one man can make a difference.

He already has made a difference in the county Democratic party. The party bosses whom Kucinich rallied against during the campaign have made a truce with the new mayor. Arch-rival George Forbes, the black city council president who once promised that he would see to it that Kucinich never became mayor, has since promised to cooperate with Kucinich. Forbes also intimated he may quit soon because of health reasons, and this would create an opening for Kucinich himself to become party chairman.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, the nation's oldest governor, was Kucinich's host Saturday in Columbus and advised Kucinich to draw up a definite program for federal aid which Kucinich can present to President Carter when he visits him.

The governor and the mayor say they plan an exposition in the next couple of years to celebrate the city's role as a center of industry and commerce.

Kucinich has accepted the mayor's job with characteristic pluck. A day after his election, Kucinich strode into a luncheon of an erstwhile unsympathetic camp of city business leaders and said, "You don't have to

Odds 30-1 Against Repeat Of Last Winter's Cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the massive snow storm and cold temperatures that swept large areas of the central United States last week, government forecasters say the odds are 30 to 1 against a repeat of last winter's severe conditions.

But Donald L. Gilman, chief of the National Weather Service's long-range prediction group, said "winters generally vary quite irregular from year to year" and that even the odds makers can be wrong.

Gilman's comment was in a speech for delivery today to the Agriculture Department's annual outlook conference, which runs through Thursday. Weather, of course, is the most important variable in the production of farm crop and livestock.

A year ago, he said, the weather service predicted "below normal temperature" over most of the eastern United States in the winter of 1976-77. As it turned out, last winter was the most severe since 1917-18.

In both cases, half a century apart, the severe weather was linked to "a marked and unusually persistent interruption" of prevailing westerly winds high over North America which moved farther north than usual.

"The return flow around a persistent ridge of high pressure in the western parts of the United States and Canada worry under circumstances whether my administration is doing the right thing because my head's on right."

Then Kucinich delivered his own challenge: "Cleveland must dare to be great."

To 638,793 Clevelanders accustomed to hearing jokes about the dirty city on the Cuyahoga River, this is refreshing talk — no matter what happens after the honeymoon.

swept southward down across central Canada and penetrated deep into the southern United States," Gilman said.

As a result, there was record warmth in Anchorage, Alaska; record cold in Miami, and a failure of winter storms to reach the west coast and replenish the mountain snowpacks of the western mountains.

"One can reasonably say, therefore, that the climatic odds against the recurrent in 1977-78 of a similar and equally severe winter pattern must be rather long, nearly as long as those against the original occurrence," Gilman said. "We would set them at more than 30 to 1."

The weather service in September undertook a "very preliminary" look at the coming winter, based on the abnormal regional patterns of upper winds last summer, last spring and in the last two winters, he said.

"The scattered clues we found pointed toward a national temperature pattern in which the northeastern quarter of the country and the Central Mississippi Valley seemed the most likely to experience a colder winter than normal, and the southwestern quarter most likely to enjoy a mild one," Gilman said.

The weather service will issue its regular winter outlook on Nov. 28, he said.

New Policies May Help Integration

WASHINGTON (AP) — New policies hammered out by the government and a major association of real estate appraisers could remove some of the barriers to neighborhood racial integration.

The policies say, in effect, that the race of owners and neighbors will not be assumed to affect property values.

If the federal government wins similar concessions from three other organizations, black families might find it easier to get loans to buy houses in white communities, and white families might be more likely to remain in neighborhoods which are becoming integrated.

Under pressure from the government, the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers agreed to take several steps to eliminate race as a factor in evaluating property.

The agreement, approved by a federal court in Chicago last Wednesday, settles the government's civil rights suit against the institute, a trade association of several thousand real estate appraisers and analysts.

Officials of the Justice Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development were involved in negotiating the settlement.

Justice Department lawyers say they are pursuing the suit against the other defendants — the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, which has about 18,000 members, and two trade associations for home mortgage lenders, the United States League of Savings Associations and the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

In the suit filed in April 1976, the government charged the defendants with violating the 1968 Fair Housing Act by automatically downgrading property values after black families moved into white neighborhoods.

Without admitting any illegality, the institute has agreed that "racial, religious and ethnic factors are unreliable predictors of value trends or price variance."

The institute also agreed to instruct its members that they cannot assume a house in an all-white neighborhood is more valuable because the neighborhood is white.

Nor can they assume that the value of a house decreases when a black family moves in next door.

Government lawyers said the past practice encouraged white families to move out of newly-integrated neighborhoods as they saw the appraised value of their property drop.

The practice also made it difficult for blacks to get mortgages to buy homes in white neighborhoods, they said. This is because lenders put great weight on the appraiser's valuation in determining the amount of the mortgage they will approve or whether they will approve any at all, they added.

So in some cases, department lawyers said, the selling price of a house might be far below the appraised value, and the potential buyer would be unable to finance the purchase.

The institute agreed to revise its basic appraisal textbook to eliminate race as a factor in appraising property. The institute also will conduct seminars to explain the new policies to its members and to others in the real estate industry.

Three Die In Sunday House Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A man and two young children were killed here Sunday when the adult tried to extinguish a house fire instead of fleeing, fire officials said.

"This is a sad thing," said Columbus Battalion Fire Chief Richard Gordon. "And as far as I'm concerned it's needless."

The dead were identified as Walter Cook, 49, Moshe Rogers, 3 and Johanas Rogers 16 months. Two other persons escaped the fire.

Gordon said the five persons were sleeping in the living room of the two-story frame house, which was heated by a single electric heater. Fire officials theorize the fire started from a short in a heater cord.

The blaze started as a small fire underneath a sofa, then spread to the entire first floor, firemen said.

"Had they left the house (immediately) and had they taken the children with them, there probably would have been no loss of life," Gordon said.

Cook apparently told Mrs. Leona Gilbert, 70, the children's grandmother, and Tracey Lynn Wright, 11, to escape, then he tried to fight the fire himself, Gordon said.

Cook finally gave up and attempted to carry Johanas outside, but was overcome by heat and smoke and collapsed inside the front door, Gordon said.

The body of the 3-year-old child was found on a sofa bed, he said.

Bobcats stand 15 inches high at the shoulder and range across most of North America. Their pelts are covered with black spots and vary in color from a pale white to dark brown.

Insulation Factory Working

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — The world's largest fiber glass insulation factory is working nonstop to make this winter tolerable, but it still can't meet the escalating consumption pace sweeping the country.

The Owens-Corning Fiberglas factory here is operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to produce the fluffy pink fiber which is getting harder to find as cold weather entrenches.

The factory produces about 140 railroad cars full of fiber glass daily. It travels by rail to distribution points which are so starved for insulation material that many wholesalers won't promise delivery to retailers, like hardware and department stores, until next year.

Homeowners merely wanting to bolster their protection against the winter winds are finding that retail stores have no insulation in stock. Most retail stores have waiting lists for delivery next year, in some cases, after winter.

To try to meet demand which has been swelling for years, the Toledo-based firm has doubled its insulation-producing capacity here since 1970. Output is up to 1.2 billion pounds a year with a work force of 2,700. Owens-Corning officials say that's actually a large number of workers, since most of the fibermaking process is automated.

In making the material, sand and limestone silica are blended at high temperatures, along with materials the company won't disclose.

The substances are melted, then spun like thread into a cotton candy texture.

Owens-Corning estimates that three million U.S. homeowners added attic insulation during the first half of 1977, and demand didn't drop when summer arrived.

"The crunch has really been on," said Arthur B. Ochs, an Owens-Corning spokesman.

The firm is opening another insulation production facility next year at Delmar, N.Y., in an effort to meet insulation demand from the home building industry.

Dock Worker's Strike Settled

NEW YORK — Tentative settlement of the 44-day longshoremen's strike in North Atlantic ports is expected to lead to settlements along the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts. But no matter what develops, dock workers are not expected back on the job before next weekend.

Union and shipping negotiators for striking Gulf Coast and South Atlantic Coast ports were to meet today on the three-year pact that was reached Sunday between the International Longshoremen's Association and the New York Shippers Association.

The accord covers ports from Maine to Virginia, but was expected to set the pattern for the remaining striking ports. The agreement calls for a 30 percent wage-benefit boost over the length of the contract, raising the current hourly wage of $8 to $10.40 by the third year.

Thomas Gleason, ILA president, said Sunday that no increase in shipping costs would be necessary as a result of the pay hikes because "productivity has gone up 1,500 percent" through automation. There was no immediate comment from the shippers.

Gleason said he hoped to have the all ports ratify the agreement by Friday.

About half the union's 50,000 longshoremen have been involved in the strike that began Oct. 1, and is directed only against container ships. Shipping sources say the costs of the strike so far run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Pre-Christmas deliveries by importers and exporters have been among the casualties of the strike, which has caused layoffs in trucking companies and other related businesses.

Puerto Rican importers had to take expensive air shipment of foodstuffs, and grocery prices on the island soared with staples in short supply.

The master agreement, worked out here Sunday after a weekend of virtually non-stop talks between the ILA and the shippers, provides 80-cent hourly pay increases in each of the three years, with the first-year increase retroactive to last June 1, although the contract's effective date would be Oct. 1.

Carter . . .

Then the president announced Aug. 30 he was giving nonWhite House white-collar workers and military personnel a 7.05 percent pay raise Oct. 1. It was authorized by Congress, under the same act.

Associate Press Secretary Claudia Townsend said Sunday night that Carter subsequently agreed with Hugh Carter Jr., Harden and the senior assistants it would be only fair for the White House staff to get the same raise.

No figures were immediately available on how many persons got the raise or how much it cost. But records showed a score of White House staffers already making $40,000 were eligible for the increase. Dozens more earn less than $40,000 a year and were eligible, too.

The raise did not go to top staffers like presidential assistants Hamilton Jordan, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Midge Costanza, Stuart Eizenstat, Frank Moore or Jack Watson. They and Press Secretary Jody Powell already make $56,000 under the April raise.

Nor was it available to Ms. Townsend and a handful of other aides recently promoted into jobs with higher salaries.

The budget sessions this week reflect concentration on departments, including Labor, Interior, Housing and Urban Development and Agriculture, as well as agencies that include the Army Corps of Engineers, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Fossil Bank

In the desolate expanse of Antarctica, about 400 miles from the South Pole, scientists continue to find convincing evidence to support the continental drift theory of the evolution of the earth. One of the discoveries was a reptile skull belonging to a species prevalent 200 million years ago.

Fossils of this same reptile have been found in South Africa and Asia. Earlier discoveries at the Antarctica site produced specimens of predecessors of the dinosaur which was known to have inhabited North America and Europe.

The discovery of the fossil repository, called by some scientists one of the great fossil finds of all times, provides one of the most direct links to several continents ever found.

It heavily substantiates the theory which began to receive prominent mention 50 years ago that the earth once consisted of one or two supercontinents, one of which has been called Gondwanaland.

Chinese Dinner

By JIM BISHOP

The Dragon Inn crouches on a big rock halfway between Kowloon and Lo Wu. At twilight it looks like an old movie set. There is a curving driveway, a whiff of jasmine, and the winking lights of Hong Kong in the bottom of a rice bowl.

We declined the invitation. It is the habit of Chinese to giggle when they are pleased, amused, offended or embarrassed. Chen insisted. "You will like it," he said in chop-chop English. F. Fong giggled. He sells slim dresses to fat Americans.

"I am a difficult man," I said in pidgin English. "Meat and potatoes. There are many American foods I will not eat. Your guest will disappoint you," they glanced at Kelly. She made a mock bow.

"We will go," she said. "We are honored." Chen is not likable. He uses expression like "Boy, he's sharp" in the wrong place. When he visits America, he resents being searched "like a criminal." He fits American men with cheap silk suits and flirts with their wives.

We sat around a table for eight, a table which in the center had a lazy Susan and a hole about eight inches in diameter in his center. Jack and Dorothy Sullivan were with us. Ladies are willing to experiment in exotic foods; men are grim and defensive.

Dragon Inn has an orange tile roof and a curving top beam. It hangs over the darkening bay like a frightened fledgling. It has no side walls. All of the tables were occupied by rich Chinese families. The waiters shuffled in slippers and loose pantaloons.

There would be no chop suey in this place. No chow mein. No egg rolls. The phases induced giggles. Softly, I told Fong I would not eat braised elephant trunk, rabbit intestines, shark fin soup or charred deer tail. "Peacock tongue?" he said hopefully.

Sullivan prepared to fast. On the far side of the restaurant, a big rectangular tank held fish. They were grouper, yellowtail, a flat fish with mandarin whiskers, and plump goldfish. The diner picks one. The chef spears the fish and carries him, protesting and bleeding, to the kitchen.

A Chinese dinner is 60 percent conversation, 40 percent food. It is a sign of status to eat the unusual, to claw one's way from the rice bowl. Each course was served family style, on the center of the Lazy Susan. I asked Chen if food ever fell into that round hole.

He laughed hysterically. So did Fong. "I tell you about that hole," he said, wiping his eyes. He didn't. The waiters passed ornamental ivory chopstick. Kelly does well with them. Sullivan said he wanted a knife and fork or he wouldn't play.

The shark's fin soup looked like shredded gray chicken and noodles. It is a sign of Oriental appreciation to make noise while eating. There is a lot of noisy sipping, windy sighs and smacking of lips. The soup sold for 10 Hong Kong dollars a serving — about $1.60. Next came "Fried Sliced Chicken Paper Wrapped." It came in oiled paper the size of a change purse. Eating it is like snapping at a diamond with eyebrow tweezers in a coal mine. I skipped the stewed pigeon.

Skipping became important. The Orientals watched me and giggled. The next course was duck's feet and chuk sang. The following one looked good and tasted good until Fong, a man who is so intimate with a measuring tape that he could be arrested, told me it was grouper head.

"What happened to the rest of the fish?" I said. A lady from Arkansas said, "Mr. Chen, you come to our town and we'll serve you collar greens." "Ah, ye-e-s," he said, not understanding. There were so many courses. Pig's kidney and bamboo shoot. Braised ox tripe.

Chen laughed. "You see? It's beautiful. This real Chinese." Next was chicken blood soup. My lips remained sealed. Chen said that if I wanted a piece of truly tender fish, he would order the chef to stroke it to death with a peacock fan.

"What is the hole in the table?" I said. Chen said, "Dessert." Fong shook his head. "You would not like it. Try the lotus seed cream." Thank you, no, I said.

"Please," Kelly said, "what dessert in the middle of the table?" Chen smiled. "Look underneath," he said. We pushed our chairs away. Underneath was a tiny wooden highchair with straps. "So?" I said.

Chen shrugged. He showed a wooden mallet. "Put simian monkey in chair," he said. "Strap him in. Hit his head with mallet. Break skull. Eat monkey brains."

"What?" Kelly said. "While he's still thinking?"

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors of America unite! The time is now; speak up for your rights, throw off the shackles! Bring the battle to the oppressor of investor rights and disarm them by showing the error of their ways.

A rather small band of dedicated investors heard this proclamation at a convention in Atlanta late last week on what was appropriately remembered as the 60th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

"It may be an understatement to say Leninism has gone about as far as it can go," declared the speaker. Let us now assert the rights of property, he said, for owners of property are financially and otherwise responsible to it and for it.

There are 25 million investors who directly own shares in American industry. There exist another 50 million potential beneficiaries of pension funds that are invested in the market. Let us therefore proclaim people's capitalism!

George Nicholson, a broker, was the speaker. His audience was made up of members of the National Association of Investment Clubs at their annual convention. Nicholson is also an adviser to the association.

This is what he advised: The establishment of an Individual Investors Magna Carta to be submitted to the World Investment Congress in Amsterdam next April 27-29. And establishment of an Individual Investor Relations Board.

The latter would be sought with the aid of President Carter and Congress, and would parallel the National Labor Relations Board. Its purpose would be to deal with unfair investor practices wherever they occur.

A big order. As investors see it, unfair practices often emanate from Washington, D.C. and other capitals, where it is felt almost everyone's rights these days take precedence over those of investors.

The time to act has come, he said. A worldwide reaction has set in against overwhelming central authority and disregard for property and the sense of personal responsibility it encourages.

Nations are tired of devouring themselves. Only recently, he noted, Ireland and Sweden have changed to more conservative governments. And in France, he said, fears of a socialist-communist coalition in March are reduced.

Capital and labor have a mutual interest in investing, he continued. Investments produce jobs, retirement pensions. Jobs provide money to be invested.

"Americans can create an investment engine that will help the unemployed today and keep the purchasing power of pensions tomorrow if individual investor rights are asserted," he concluded.

Investment club members have seen another movement grow from such a small beginning — their own. The association was formed in Detroit in 1951. It now has 6,000 members, and a World Federation of Investment Clubs now exists in London.

Sedentary Americans

BOSTON (AP) — Many Americans may be leading such sedentary lives that they are "virtually motionless," moving about little more than if they remained in bed 24 hours a day, Dr. William Kannel, director of the famed Framingham Heart Study, said here recently.

Kannel said 16 percent of men and 21 percent of women in a group studied in Framingham achieved activity scores of 29 or less. He said that spending 24 hours in bed rates a score of 24.

Now known as the Boston University-Framingham Heart Study, the project has involved studying several thousand Framingham residents for 27 years, first under federal sponsorship and since 1971 under private auspices.

Kannel told a symposium on leisure time sponsored by the Massachusetts Medical Society that even in the group scoring the highest levels of activity, with scores higher than 36, few would qualify for a high level of physical fitness. If these people are typical, many Americans are unfit, he added.

Despite the lack of scientific evidence on exact relationships between activity and fitness, he said, "it is of interest that the greater the dose of those sedentary traits, the greater the risk of cardiovascular disease."

The thickness of the earth's crust varies from about four miles in places under the oceans to about 30 miles beneath high mountains.

Scholars think Julius Caesar was stabbed fatally with the pointed metal styli that Roman senators used to write on waxed slates, the National Geographic says.

Pickaway County farmers were urged by officials of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau that if they were in need of, or going to have need for any steel or related metal items, they should order them as soon as possible.

The shortage was critical in the steel industry and there was no sign of any expected change in the near future.

Over 7,000 votes were cast in Pickaway County on election day. Thurman I. Miller, democrat, defeated Joe Glitt and Clayton B. Chalfin for the position of Mayor of Circleville.

Pickaway County's poultry farmers were "sitting pretty" during the prevalent era of the high cost of food. The egg and chicken business was quite lucrative with profits averaging 29.2 per hen per month.

LAFF - A - DAY

"Look, I'm getting fed up with hearing the same thing every night! I KNOW 'it's a jungle out there,' okay?!"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The cycle of colds, sinusitis and allergies is with us again. With two adults and three teenagers in the household it would be very helpful if we knew how to distinguish a cold from an allergy.

Mrs. G. J., Mich.

Dear Mrs. J.:

A sinus infection can follow either a cold or allergy. Bacteria find their way from the nose into the sinuses, set up housekeeping and get to work.

Allergic people seem to be more susceptible to sinus infections than others because the germs that infect the sinuses grow more profusely in the warm moist area of the nose. The nose is virtually an incubator that makes these bacteria flourish.

In general, colds, infections and sinusitis are associated with achiness, headaches, a feeling of debility and, sometimes, fever.

On the other hand, allergic attacks usually confine themselves to sneezing, running of the nose and itching of the eyes. The patient may feel miserable, but does not have the general body discomfort that accompanies severe colds.

When allergies and sinus infections are present at the same time, treatment is directed at both. The use of simple antihistamines and decongestants is effective and brings moderate relief. The decision as to the use of antibiotics must, of course, be made by the doctor.

There is a tendency to use leftover antibiotics before consulting the doctor. This is unwise because not only may the shelf life of the drug have expired, but the nature of the infection may not have required an antibiotic in the first place.

Many early colds are viral infections rather than bacterial infections. Viral infections do not respond to the antibiotics. Yet doctors will sometimes prescribe an antibiotic even though an infection seems to be of viral origin. The purpose is to prevent the secondary invasion of the nose, throat and sinuses by bacteria.

When people are living in close contact with each other, it is important that they separate themselves from the others at the onset of a cold. Cross-contamination is always a problem.

One of the most effective treatments for acute sinus infections is the use of steam. Concentrated steam is almost always available in the bathroom. Well-balanced steam inhalators and facial saunas are very effective. Tiny inhalators are tippable and one should be very careful when using them. Young children must never be left alone during a steam treatment.

Warm, moist compresses to the face bring welcome relief to sufferers of acute sinus infections. Aspirin, unless forbidden in certain cases, can add to this relief.

Nose drops and nose sprays should be used only sparingly. Allergic people, particularly, have a tendency to become dependent on these "vasoconstricting" medicines. Almost before they recognize it, these drops are used with such great frequency and in such great quantities that there is a rebound swelling of the nose which makes the misery last longer.

Despite What They Always Say Politicians Play Numbers Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians always say they don't want to get into the numbers game. Then they play it.

It is, after all, the only game in town between elections.

There are two sets of rules. One, for the party or the candidate who expects to win, is poor-mouthing so as to magnify a victory. The other, for politicians going against the odds, is to make exaggerated claims, perhaps in hopes that saying it might make it come true.

Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, the House Republican leader, was proceeding on plan two when he peered ahead a year to the 1978 congressional elections.

"Well, I always avoid the temptation of playing that numbers game," he said during an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press." "I do feel it's highly possible that we could take in the House of Representatives enough to make a majority."

"Back in 1964 we took a terrible licking and then in 1966 I believe we had 65 brand-new Republicans after Interstate 275

To Open Dec. 6

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The western half of Interstate 275, the first tri-state outerbelt in the country, will be opened to traffic Dec. 6, according to the Ohio Department of Transportation. The highway circles Cincinnati and cuts through the corners of Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

The 41-mile section, which cost more than $200 million, runs from Interstate-75 north of Cincinnati through Indiana and rejoins I-75 in Kentucky south of Covington.

Govs. James Rhodes of Ohio, Julian Carroll of Kentucky and Otis Bowen of Indiana are to preside at a 1:30 p.m. ribboncutting ceremony.

the election of '66."

That's playing the numbers game in reverse; actually, the Republicans gained 47 House seats in that comeback year, a showing they have not approached since.

"We would need something like 72 this time..." Rhodes went on. "I think it could be done."

That is not a widely held view. Democrats dominate the House, 289 seats to 146, and it would take a miracle to put the Republicans in charge next time.

Indeed, Rhodes acknowledged off camera that he wouldn't be unhappy if the Republicans gained, say, 40 seats in the House — which also looks like a long shot at this point.

Historically, the party out of White House power has gained 35 to 45 House seats in midterm congressional elections. But one official at the Republican National Committee conceded that the GOP will be doing well to gain half that number next year.

He could, of course, have been playing the poor-mouth numbers game.

But Gallup polls indicate that if the election were held now, the Republican gains would be minimal at best. Gallup soundings found Republican congressional support now to be almost identical to that four years ago. After the elections of 1974, Republicans had two fewer seats in the House than they hold now.

The numbers game is not limited to advance speculation. It can be played after an election, too. That's happening now, in assessments of the assorted elections of 1977. Republican National Chairman Bill Brock claims important gains and solid progress. But the Democrats counter that for a party as dominant as theirs, breaking even is winning.

Actually, it takes a gamesman of no mean skill to find any national trend in the scattering of elections that are held in odd-numbered years.

So Democratic Gov. Brendan Byrne won landslide re-election in New Jersey, when he looked like a sure loser. Brock can point to Republican gains in the New Jersey state Senate, where the GOP picked up three seats. His claim to GOP progress is somewhat weakened by the fact that Democrats gained five seats in the Statehouse, and held control of both branches of the legislature.

Republicans won the other big prize with the election of John Dalton as governor of Virginia. That leaves the party lineup unchanged: 37 Democratic governors, 12 Republicans, one independent.

Being one in a dozen, Dalton will have no trouble getting the floor when Republican governors gather.

And Byrne's Statehouse colleagues may be looking to him for political advice now that he has surmounted the burden of having approved a state income tax. In the past that has been political poison for governors of both parties.

Byrne campaigned as a governor who didn't shirk tough decisions and who therefore had earned respect and a new term. Just in case the message didn't take, there was a sweetener.

The state sent out income tax rebates averaging $190 to 1.3 million New Jersey homeowners. They were mailed during the weeks before the election, and with them went a message from the governor, explaining the rebate system. For good measure, forms for 1978 property tax rebates were mailed out, too.

That's the kind of numbers game a voter can understand.

CHICKEN PATTIES

Easy to make — and delicious.
1 cup loosely packed, finely chopped cooked chicken

1/2 cup soft bread crumbs

1-3rd cup commercial mayonnaise

1/2 tablespoon finely grated onion,

pulp and juice

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper

Fine dry bread crumbs

Mix together all the ingredients except the dry crumbs. Shape into 4 patties about 1 inch thick. Roll in the dry crumbs. In a little hot butter in a skillet, brown the patties on both sides. Serve at once. Makes 2 servings — 2 patties per portion.

Computers Aiding Small Grocers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government researchers are using computers to see if small neighborhood grocery stores can be helped to stay in business.

So far, there have been some promising signs that computers can help consolidate deliveries to small stores, one of the problems which has caused thousands of them to go out of business, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Agricultural Research Service has worked with experts at Pennsylvania State University in developing a computer program which simulates the effects of consolidating items needed by small stores into a single truck delivery.

Harold S. Ricker, chairman of the agency's Agricultural Marketing Research Institute, said that "many trucks carry only one brand of a specialty product, so the average delivery to corner stores is small."

For example, he said that in a study of 23 small stores in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh areas, one-half of all the bakery deliveries had a wholesale value of less than $10 each.

"The cost of delivering snacks, bakery products and soft drinks averaged 15 to 20 percent of what the grocer paid for these items," Ricker said. "Delivery costs are one of the major factors contributing to high food prices in small stores."

In one of the computer simulations, it was found that consolidation of orders — based on an advance determination of a store's needs — saved $200 a week, or about 25 percent on their delivery costs.

"The large, diversified chain-operated grocery store is a tough competitor for the small operator," Ricker said. "But these small stores are particularly important to the poor, the elderly and the handicapped who may not have transportation to suburban stores."

Cooked, diced carrots and sniveled snap beans dressed with butter make an excellent combination. To snivel the beans cut them crosswise in about 1/2-inch wide pieces before cooking.

Transalaska Pipeline Delivering

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — After a shaky start, the TransAlaska oil pipeline is delivering crude oil from Prudhoe Bay to the marine terminal at Valdez with only an occasional minor problem.

Tankers large and small are churning through Valdez Narrows toward refineries in the Lower 48 at the rate of about one a day.

As of Nov. 1, more than 68,750,000 barrels of the estimate 9.6 billion barrels of recoverable crude at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope had been pumped into the loading tanks at Valdez.

With 4½ months of pipeline operation on the record, William J. Darch, president of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., says the integrity of the line and the standards of construction have been demonstrated satisfactorily.

Alyeska is the consortium of eight oil companies which designed and built the 800-mile, $7.7 billion line, and now is operating the long steel tube.

"Obviously, the extremely sophisticated system has not been yet completely debugged," Darch said, alluding to minor problems which still crop up.

"The combination of the extremely sensitive and sophisticated instrumentation, with the problems of Alaskan geography, means that we are learning still, and probably shall continue to do so for some time."

Noting that the 100th tanker is scheduled to sail from Valdez with cargo tanks filled with Alaskan oil this month, Darch said it is a signal to Alyeska "that in the language of today we've gotten our act together."

Problems plagued the construction project after the first oil entered the 48-inch line at Prudhoe Bay on June 20.

There were spills and accidents that kept pipeline engineers busy for more than a month, until the first crude from the North Slope started spurting in the tanks at Valdez on July 28.

The worst was an explosion and fire which leveled the pump house at Pump Station No. 8 just southeast of Fairbanks on July 8. One man died in the disaster, and reconstruction work on Pump 8 is still going on, with completion scheduled in January.

Alyeska estimates that it will take about a month after that for systems checking at the station, and that Pump 8 will go back on the line sometime in March.

Alyeska originally had planned to be running about 1.2 million barrels of crude a day through the line by this time, but the Pump 8 disaster intervened.

The daily flow rate on Oct. 31 was 754,000 barrels, but the flow rate varies from day to day. On Oct. 28, for instance, it was 695,000 barrels, on Oct. 26 730,000 barrels.

The daily average flow rate from oil on June 20 through Nov. 1 was 509,444 barrels.

"It depends on what goes on in the field, at Prudhoe, and it depends on what goes on in our own operation," Alyeska spokesman Sam Akin said of the daily flow rate.

"We may close down a pump at one of the stations for a few hours for some reason or another, and that will slow down the rate. There are all kinds of things that can affect it. It bicycles from one day to the next."

"We expect that it will hang around the 750,000-barrel figure until Pump 8 goes back on line."

"We will have the capacity then for the 1.2 million barrels a day we were originally to have had by now, but the amount to be moved depends on what the owners want moved."

"If they have a need for that much crude oil someplace, they'll bring ships in to Valdez to move it. If not, we'll be moving at lower quantities."

Host City Allowed To Pick New Olympic Sport

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the quaint Olympic customs, like sex tests to separate the jocks from the leotards, permits the host city to choose a brand-new event, a sport or a competition not seen before in this quadrennial worldwide sweat fest.

Los Angeles, which hosts the Olympic Games in 1984, should have no sweat coming up with a classy new athletic contest uniquely suited to its climate, terrain and citizenry. Not since the Greeks tore off their tunics and began racing naked cross country and jumping over bonfires (an event since eliminated because of the spark hazard) in quest of gold medals and press clippings back in 1453 B.C. has there been a town more in tune to the Olympiad's ideals of "citius, altius, fortiter": faster, higher, stronger.

Goals like that built MGM, Cecil B. DeMille, the Morris Agency and ABC's "Soap" ratings long before the municipal fathers thought of importing the big international freak show to lighten those summer dog days when the Dodgers are on the road.

With suburbs like Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Disneyland and Malibu, and a tradition of clean, healthy competition going all the way back to Harry Cohn and the Brothers Warner, Los Angeles has long been renowned for inventing new, exciting ways to beat the other guy out of something. Anything.

Competition is to L.A. what incense is to the Vatican; it's in the air, diffusing an aroma of zeal, fervor, religiosity. Come to think of it, the air around here is a lot like incense. You can see it as you breathe it.

For years in these parts they've been playing imaginative, high stakes games that would easily lend themselves to Olympic competition, and give the East Germans something new to shoot at instead of sliding down frozen hills on garbage can lids or hefting a couple of dozen manhole covers.

With some new capers going on in the world playpen, all the old Olympic feuds would burn away in no time under the benevolent California sun.

Here in Tinsel Town, as it is affectionately called by Variety, the learned historical journal, nobody worries about a boy swimmer actually being a girl swimmer or some shade of gene in between. Few here give a hoot whether the star turn is popping steroids, hormones or stabilizers, or maybe draining his blood before breakfast, which is an old custom out here going back to the earliest Dracula flick.

Nobody down on Sunset Boulevard or at the corner of Hollywood and Vine, waiting to be discovered, is going to come crying to the Olympic Committee because the Russian swordsmen has a laser beam and homing radar built into the point of his epee. Folks who live along the San Andreas fault, in defiance of the laws of nature, don't get sticky about the codicils in the rule book.

In L.A., it's not how you play the game but how you win that counts.

So here are a few suggested events that the Los Angeles Olympic Committee might want to consider before they choose a new sport emblematic of the town's mores and life style.

THE PAPPARAZI PUSH: An en-Milk Production Up In October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's milk production totalled more than 9.9 billion pounds, a gain of 2.7 percent from 9.64 billion pounds in October of last year.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that milk production in the first 10 months of this year was about 103.9 billion pounds, up 2.4 percent from the same period in 1976 when 101.4 billion pounds were produced.

HOW TO WIN AT THE LOSING GAME

DIET CENTER

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Sprinting from first base to second on a ground ball, Eddie determined to prevent a double play at all costs. With his right arm held high, he slammed full speed into the second baseman. Although Eddie did not succeed in stopping the double play, he did succeed in fracturing the second baseman's jaw.

The victim lost no time in suing Eddie for damages.

"This was unnecessary roughness," he told the court. "Furthermore, I wasn't even in the baseline when he hit me."

The court decided Eddie was indeed liable for inflicting this "wanton injury" on a fellow athlete.

Like any other citizen, a baseball player can be held liable for illegal behavior. The mere fact that baseball is a sport does not exempt it from basic rules of law.

On the other hand, some risks must be accepted as a part of the game. Another player, sliding into second base, fractured the second baseman's ankle. The latter had been gazing toward the outfield to catch a throw.

But here the court found no basis for liability, since this was the kind of accident that is "normal" to the game.

Nor is there any liability when there is no provable act of negligence. In a sandlot game, the youth at the plate realized that his hands were sweaty. He wiped them on his pants, then gripped the bat as hard as he could.

But when he swung, the bat slipped out of his hands and struck another player in the leg.

Was the batter liable for the harm he had caused? A court said no because he had made every reasonable effort to be careful.

Said the judge:

"What more could he have done?"

Pregnancy Regulation May Go To Courts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus lawmaker's fight to overturn a state regulation restricting time off for pregnancy may turn from the legislature to the courts.

Rep. Michael P. Stinziano D. Columbus, described as "incredible" an administrative services department rule under which use of sick leave and accrued vacation time for pregnancy is restricted to five days after the birth.

He said he intends to file a suit in Franklin County Common Pleas Court "as soon as the paperwork is completed" and added that compulsory leaves of absence without pay "is unprecedented and a clear discrimination against pregnant women employees."

The Columbus representative is sponsoring a bill which is pending in the House Rules Committee, awaiting a floor vote. He conceded he doesn't have a chance of getting action on it when the legislature returns this week.

However, he said he is hopeful of getting it passed when the legislature convenes in January for its 1978 session.

Under Stinziano's bill, which generally prohibits discrimination against pregnant workers in Ohio, employers would have to grant pregnancy leaves the same as they do for other types of temporary job disabilities.

He said that the reason he isn't pressing for his legislation at this week's expected three days of Senate and House deliberations is that a similar bill is pending in Congress. It already has been approved by the Senate, he said, "by a lopsided margin."

Both the federal and state legislation resulted from a U.S. Supreme Court decision (General Electric vs. Gilbert) which said that the exclusion of pregnancy from disability income does not constitute discrimination under federal civil rights laws.

Enactment of the federal legislation would circumvent the court decision which is based on existing laws, and it would apply to all states. For that reason, House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-New Boston, told Stinziano that his bill may not be needed.

Under the legislation, any employer who provides any health, disability benefit, or sick leave to employees must treat a temporary disability "caused or contributed to by pregnancy, miscarriage, or childbirth the same on the terms and conditions as other temporary disabilities," the Legislative Service Commission analysis of Stinziano's bill says.

Enforcement would be in the hands of the Ohio Civil Rights Commission which already guards against discrimination by employers on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, handicap or ancestry.

County To Get CETA Funds

Governor James A. Rhodes announced today he has approved the expenditure of $402,935 in federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds for nine local public service projects.

"These projects will create 70 additional jobs to stimulate the local economies and help provide services that could not be provided by local governments within their budgetary restrictions," the Governor said.

Administrative Services Director Richard D. Jackson said these programs are designed to hire economically disadvantaged and unemployed persons in Ashland, Fairfield, Huron, Pickaway, Gallia, Jackson, Muskingum and Harrison Counties. Pickaway County will receive $38,649 for an environmental health assessment. The funds will be administered by the Pickaway County Board of Health.

Persons who are interested in employment in one of the local projects should contact the nearest office of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services.

The Governor approved the projects on recommendation of the State Prime Sponsor Council, an advisory board on the expenditure of CETA for the 58-county balance of state area.

Columbus Woman Journeys To Colorado Springs Again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In the spring of 1969, Mrs. Sandra Paul journeyed to Colorado Springs, Colo., to watch her handsome young son graduate from the U.S. Air Force Academy.

The following year she returned to the beautiful campus nestled high in the Rocky Mountains to see her son, Craig, married in the magnificent chapel.

Mrs. Paul returned to the academy again several days ago — this time to see Craig buried with full military honors.

For five years, she had agonized over the fate of her son. Craig was shot down over Vietnam in 1972 and was declared Missing In Action (MIA). Now, at least she knows for sure.

"Sitting there in that chapel, almost in the same seat, it all seemed so cruel," she said.

Mrs. Paul looked haggard. She had just reached Columbus from Colorado the night before after hours and hours on the road, many of them in the heart of the winter's first blizzard.

"Did I tell you we drove to Colorado?" she asked. "Craig had this dog that is just too big to take on a plane. He's just a mutt that Craig picked up at the dog pound when he was a few weeks old. But I insisted that he be there to say goodbye to Craig. So we drove. And we had the memorial services with the complete family there."

Air Force Capt. Craig A. Paul was born in Columbus, lived most of his 26 years in central Ohio and graduated from the Air Force Academy in 1969. On Dec. 20, 1972, he was shot down over Hanoi.

Since then, thousands of Americans, including more than 5,000 just from Ohio and the bordering states, have worn a bracelet with Craig Paul's name on it as a symbol that he was not forgotten.

Last month, Craig was among 20 American servicemen returned to the U.S. by the Vietnamese.

"We're grateful to know the fate of our son even though that fate was not what we had hoped for or expected," Mrs. Paul said. "But there's still 1,300 men unaccounted for. There still is a job to be done."

"And I think it behooves President Carter to get on the stick and get the job done instead of giving concessions to the Communists."

Mrs. Paul, 53, has been trying to "get the job done" since her son was captured. She has been active in the League of Families of American Prisoners of War and Missing in Action. She was on that body's national board of directors from 1974-76. She has been coordinator of the Ohio chapter since 1973.

Her husband, Kenneth, is principal of Forest Park Elementary School in Columbus. They have a younger son, Steven, who served in the Navy during the war and returned safely to also become a teacher.

Mrs. Paul has a new project. "I didn't initiate it," she said. "I'm just trying to pull the pieces together. It's the Craig A. Paul Memorial Scholarship Fund."

She currently is working out the details with officials of the Columbus school system, which will accept contributions and administer the annual scholarship grant in Craig's name.

Rain, Wind Forecast For Today

By The Associated Press

Rain and wind were forecast today for the northern Pacific Coast, into extreme western Montana with scattered snow showers likely in the mountains. Chilly temperatures hit much of the East today, with readings in the 20s and 30s.

Temperatures will be mostly mild from the northern Rockies through the southern plateau and eastward across the plains and northern Mississippi Valley.

Areas of rain or snow extend across northwest Indiana and Lake Michigan while a few showers linger over northern New England.

The first major snow of the season hit sections of Massachusetts this weekend, but sunny skies accompanied by cold temperatures were expected today.

Most of Massachusetts received some snow Sunday, with up to eight inches reported in sections of the Berkshires.

Police in some western Massachusetts communities closed roads Sunday, due to icy conditions.

Travel advisories were in effect over the eastern Dakotas because of dense fog. Skies were mostly cloudy over the Northeast and portions of the northern Rockies and northern Plains.

A large high pressure area centered over North and South Carolina covered the entire Southeast, and most of the eastern United States. It gave the southeast another clear cold night Sunday with temperatures as low as the 20s in the mountains of north Georgia and western North Carolina.

By early tonight, the high should be centered offshore east of the Carolinas coast.

Planned Parenthood Teen Info Line Gets 1,580 Calls

Planned Parenthood of Central Ohio's special teen information telephone line received 1,580 calls from teenagers in the first two months of operation. Of these callers, 998 have made appointments at a Planned Parenthood clinic.

The agency's teen awareness program began September 6 with the start of the special telephone line (224-TEEN) and the beginning of radio advertisements on stations with large numbers of teenage listeners. Public Service announcements on television and other radio stations have also been a part of the program designed to decrease unwanted teenage pregnancies.

Mary E. Harris, executive director of Planned Parenthood, announced the two-month figures. Special funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have paid for the cost of the radio advertising and brochures. More than 45,000 brochures have been distributed to area teens through schools, agencies, libraries and some businesses. The HEW funds are available only through December of this year, Mrs. Harris said.

"The number of calls we have received indicates to us that teens have many unanswered questions and that we are meeting a need," Mrs. Harris said. In addition to those callers who want to make appointments to come to a clinic for a medical examination and contraceptives, others have questions about unwanted pregnancies, venereal disease, parental restrictions, dating and other concerns.

The 224-TEEN telephone line is staffed from 9 a.m. to 12 midnight seven days a week. It will continue after the HEW funding ends in December. Collect calls are accepted from teenagers in Delaware, Madison, Marion, Pickaway and Union counties which are also served by Planned Parenthood of Central Ohio.

"Planned Parenthood has been extremely pleased with the cooperation we have received from other agencies and the schools in this program to decrease the number of unwanted teenage pregnancies," Mrs. Harris said. "We have not had negative reactions, but rather positive ones. We have also had many inquiries about the program from other Planned Parenthood groups around the country."

The muskrat, named for its two scent glands, is native to almost all of the United States and Canada.

During the 1974-75 school year, an estimated 282,834 buses with a capacity of more than 16 passengers, were used to transport approximately 22 million children to and from school, says the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Beef Will Cost More, Pork Less

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University farm economist says Ohioans will pay more for beef and less for pork next year, but the price variations won't have anything to do with Russians buying grain.

A few snow flurries lingered across parts of Ohio this morning with only the northern counties expected to receive any accumulation. The flurries were expected to taper off by afternoon.

Temperatures dropped into the 20s and low 30s overnight with readings at daybreak ranging from 24 in Youngstown to 33 in Cincinnati.

Warmer temperatures were headed for Ohio as the high pressure that moved into Ohio Sunday takes hold. Southerly winds were expected to push temperatures in to the 40s today and into the 50s Tuesday.

Another weather system will approach Ohio Tuesday, producing a chance of showers by afternoon, mainly in western Ohio.

price scare accompanying the last time the Russian grain harvest came a cropper in the early 1970s. But Wallace Bar thinks the Russians have bought just about all the extra grain they're going to need.

"The Russians aren't dumb," he said. "They had bought just about all the extra grain they needed before they announced their crop wasn't up to expectations."

The Soviets have announced a grain short-fall of about 19 million tons.

He said U.S. experts expected the Russian short-fall and gave the Soviets permission to buy up to 15 million metric tons of this country's surplus grain. But the Soviets have already purchased 13½ million metric tons on the world market, including eight million tons from the United States.

Barr said consumers can expect gradual, long-term price increases for beef. He expects cattlemen to reduce their herds by about 10 percent by early 1978 as a result of four straight years of low profits or losses.

On the farm side, cattlemen can expect their prices to increase by about $1-2 per hundredweight, Barr said. The current price range is near $40 per hundredweight — about the break-even point.

Barr said the hog business is very profitable right now and he forecasts an increase in pork production and a decline in the market price for pork. He thinks farm prices for hogs will decline from about $40 per head into the low $30s.

Barr said farmers shouldn't expect grain prices to go much higher as a result of the Russian grain purchase. "You're getting wishful thinking in the market right now," he said.

He doesn't see any major demand on American grain supplies unless a major disaster occurs somewhere in the world. And, he doesn't believe the average price for 1977 corn will equal the 1976 average of $2.14 per bushel.

The grain markets have rebounded somewhat from lows in August and September when corn had fallen to as low as $1.50 per bushel. Barr called those late summer prices unwarranted given the supply-demand outlook for grain.

Girl Awaiting Day She Can Save Her Brother's Life

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Eight-year-old Tricia Boyd is anxiously awaiting the day when she can save her older brother's life.

So is he, but the bone marrow transplant operation that could save him is apparently too costly for their parents to afford.

The brother, Kevin Boyd, was as active as any 11-year-old boy before September, when he was stricken with a blood disease which prevents his body from replenishing its blood supply.

Boyd has aplastic anemia, a disease which damages bone marrow tissues where the body produces blood.

Doctors say the youth has to undergo a complicated operation in which bone marrow from 20 points in his sister's body would be extracted and placed into his bloodstream. The transplanted marrow could slowly restore in his body the ability to make blood.

The operation is expensive, however, at least $50,000. It is available no closer than Minneapolis, Minn., and could require three months of hospitalization for the ailing youth, whose life had been devoted to school, camping and hunting before the illness came.

He was first stricken in September by a severe liver infection which led to a coma. After a month of hospitalization in Columbus, he returned home, apparently on the road to recovery. But on Nov. 5, his mother noticed the boy had developed bruises. He was ordered back to the Columbus hospital, where he remains.

The problems arose at the wrong time for Boyd's mother, Patricia Boyd, and stepfather, Jack Boyd.

The boy's father is dead, and his stepfather, who recently found a job as an oil well worker, is not yet covered by an insurance plan that might have reduced the financial pressures resulting from the illness.

The Boyd family includes five children, ages 8 to 16. Genetic factors led to his youngest sister being asked to be the bone marrow donor.

"Tricia's happy," said Mrs. Boyd on Saturday. "We were all hoping one of us could help him."

The mother said medical bills of $14,000 have accrued.

"But, we're trying to pay the hospital $25 a month and the doctors $5 or $10 a month," the housewife said. Dr. William A. Newton, director of laboratories and chief of the hematology section at Children's Hospital in Columbus, said, "With the transplant, he has a 50-50 chance. Without it, little or no chance."

Decriminalization Of 'Grass' Backed By Lawyers, Doctors

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's most influential organizations of professionals, the American Medical Association and the American Bar Association, joined Sunday to call for the elimination of criminal penalties for marijuana use.

The doctors' and lawyers' groups issued a statement that called on the U.S. Congress and state legislatures across the country to "decriminalize" the use of marijuana. It is the strongest statement so far on the marijuana situation by either group.

Under decriminalization, possession of small amounts of marijuana would be legal, but those apprehended with large amounts would still be subject to penalties. Backers say it is a way of bringing marijuana law more in line with public preferences without going as far as complete legalization.

President Carter has endorsed decriminalization and the administration announced proposed legislation in August. The U.S. Senate is preparing to consider a similar bill that would eliminate jail terms and arrest of users who were found on federal property with less than an ounce of marijuana.

"We agree with President Carter, who showed a reasonable attitude in asking that the possession of insignificant amounts for personal use should not subject the user to criminal penalties."

The statement said the groups do not condone the use of marijuana. But they called for "reason and moderation" in laws controlling its use.

State School Board Proposes Buying Buses For Desegregation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Public testimony on an Ohio Board of Education proposal to pay most of the cost of buying buses for desegregation was to be given today at hearings before the board.

At its October meeting, the board suggested that standards governing the amount the state grants school districts that buy new buses be amended to allow 100 percent reimbursement on buses purchased for desegregation.

Normally schools get a reimbursement of 35 percent of the ceiling price of each bus.

The ceiling price is not the total actual price of the bus, but rather the average price of all new buses purchased by school districts last year.

It is the highest subsidy given by the state for busing costs and has been granted in special cases in the past.

Both Columbus and Cleveland would be affected by action to increase reimbursement.

Columbus opens bids on Thursday for the 213 buses it plans to buy at a cost of about $3.8 million, while Cleveland is putting together a fleet of from 400 to 500 buses at a cost not yet determined.

New buses cost an average of $15,000.

The state department of education is expected to ask the General Assembly to increase the total amount appropriated for school bus reimbursements, said Roger Lulow, executive director for administration at the department.

The education department has to decide on Dec. 5 at the latest how much reimbursement it will seek for purchase of the Columbus fleet. That's when the board told U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan, presiding judge in the Columbus desegregation case, it would file a reimbursement petition with the state Controlling Board.

The controlling board has been cautious in opening the door to state payment for desegregation efforts mandated by federal courts.

The board recently rejected the education department's request that the controlling board approve $1,900 in matching funds to pay for a judicially-appointed "special master" to mediate in the Columbus desegregation case.

The board said it feared setting a dangerous precedent, since several Ohio cities are in litigation over racial makeup of their schools.

The Columbus school board already has asked Duncan to order the state to pick up the tab for all desegregation expenditures. Busing begins next September, and for a 22-month period, costs are expected to top $13 million, according to the Columbus board's petition.

Danish Queen Illustrates Book

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — A special edition of the trilogy "Lord of the Rings" by J.R.R. Tolkien contains drawings done by Ingahild Grathmer — the Queen of Denmark.

The queen, using the pseudonym Ingahild Grathmer, drew 80 black and white illustrations for the 1,500 numbered copies of the deluxe edition that sells for $165, the Forum Publishing House said Tuesday.

The 37-year-old queen, Margrethe Alexandrine Thorhildur Ingrid, belongs to the worldwide following of Tolkien, the late Oxford professor who created a cult with his tales of medieval myths and legends. He is best known as the creator of "The Hobbit."

Sources said the queen did the drawings "just for the fun of it" before ascending to the throne in 1972. She mailed them privately to Tolkien, with whom she corresponded until his death in 1973, they said.

Tigers Gain District Runner-Up Spot

By ANDI HUMPHRIES
Herald Sports Writer

Saturday was an action-packed day for Circleville and Logan Elm High School volleyball teams with excitement and excellent team work right down to the finish. Although neither of the Pickaway County squads came out district champs, both put up good fights against the winning team, Bexley High School.

Circleville defeated West Jefferson in the first game of the day at the Bexley High School Gym with scores of 15-8 and 15-4. The team was to play the winner of the Logan Elm-Bexley match, of which Bexley came out on top.

The Braves lost to the powerhouse home team 15-3 and 15-8. In the second game, LE led 3-0 against Bexley, then the Blue Lions took 12 straight points. The Braves rallied to take five, but could not pick up enough to win.

The big match came that afternoon when the Tigers met the Blue Lions. The home team took the first game 15-5. Circleville showed their strength in the second game, leading 9-0. The Tigers stayed on top to win 15-11.

Although the final game showed Bexley on top 16-14, it was a fight right down to the finish, with both teams showing impressive defensive tactics. Circleville took the first point, Bexley then went ahead 4-1. Circleville pulled up to one point behind and stayed within fighting distance into the double figures. Circleville tied it 10-10 and went ahead one, Bexley tied it 11-11, then Circleville again tied it at the 13 mark. Bexley and Circleville met again at 14, before Bexley took the winning two-point lead. Near the end, each point was a hard-fought victory for both teams, with the fans showing overwhelming support on every serve, spike and set.

"We anticipated a good season as we had a lot of good people coming back from last year's team but I think we exceeded our expectations with our play this year," Joy O'Brien, the personable Tiger coach commented.

"In our final game against Bexley, we played our finest game of the year and the best game of my four years at Circleville. It was just a great team effort against one of the top volleyball teams in the state.

"We were pleased to get into the finals and felt that we could give Bexley all they could handle—and we certainly did," the fiery Irish coach commented.

"I am extremely proud of our girls and it has been a pleasure to be associated with them. I would like to thank all of our fans and everyone that gave us help and support," O'Brien said.

Circleville finished the season with an overall record of 16-3, won the South Central Ohio League with a 7-0 mark and concluded the season as Sectional champions and District runnerup.

Against West Jefferson, the Tigers had a total of 47 of 55 serves for 85 percent. The individual breakdown on serves was: Michelle Nolan, 10 points, 12 of 14 for 86 percent; Natalie Martin, 6 points, 9 of 10 for 90 percent; Kathy Fanale, 5 points, 8 of 8 for 100 percent.

Injuries Mar NFL Action

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

On a day when he suffered the first disabling injury of his fantastic 17-year National Football League career, Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton set still another standard for quarterbacks.

Tarkenton's season and perhaps his career almost certainly ended Sunday when he was sacked by Cincinnati's Gary Burley and suffered a fractured bone in his right ankle during the third period of the Vikings' 42-10 victory over the Bengals.

But before he got hurt, Tarkenton dazzled the Bengals, completing 17 of 18 passes for 195 yards and the most accurate performance an NFL passer has ever produced.

Call it something to remember him by.

It seemed almost fitting that the fabulous scrambler's passing accomplishment should nearly overshadow the grim aftermath of a day that was dotted with serious injuries around the league.

Tarkenton was one of four NFL players to suffer broken legs Sunday. The others were Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey, hurt on the final play of a 24-6 loss to Los Angeles; San Diego's Bill Munson, injured on the only pass he threw in a brief backup appearance as Denver topped the Chargers 17-14, and San Francisco tackle Cas Banaszek, who was hurt early in the 49ers' 10-7 overtime victory against New Orleans.

Two other quarterbacks, Brian Sipe of Cleveland and Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, also were injured in their game, won by the Steelers 35-31, as defenses zeroed in on signal callers.

The league's stingiest defense also turned into an offense with Atlanta scoring a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns on a recovered fumble by Ralph Ortega and an interception by Robert Pennywell to whip Detroit 17-6.

Oakland and Denver both remained tied for first place in the AFC West. The Raiders held off Houston 34-29 and the Broncos rallied to beat San Diego 17-14. Pittsburgh's victory over Cleveland moved the Steelers into a first-place tie with the Browns in the AFC Central. Baltimore stayed one game in front of Miami in the AFC East, beating Buffalo 31-13 while the Dolphins were downing New England 17-5. Minnesota's romp over Cincinnati moved the Vikings two games in front of Detroit in the NFC Central and Los Angeles stayed one game up on Atlanta in the NFC West by beating Green Bay.

St. Louis plays at Dallas tonight.

Bears 28, Chiefs 27

Walter Payton scored three touchdowns and rushed for 192 yards in 33 carries, pushing his season's total to 1,129. He became the first running back in Bears' history including such Hall of Famers as Red Grange, Bronco Nagurski and Gayle Sayers to gain more than 1,000 yards in two consecutive seasons.

Payton's accomplishment was almost overshadowed by the Bears' dramatic victory constructed on a 37-yard pass from Bob Avellini to Greg Latta with only three seconds left in the game. Just 21 seconds earlier, the Chiefs had taken the lead on a 14-yard run by Ed Podolak.

Vikings 42, Bengals 10

Tarkenton's performance topped the NFL accuracy record of 20 completions in 22 attempts by Cincinnati's Ken Anderson in 1974.

He was scrambling away from Burley when the 265-pound defensive end hit him. "He tried to plant his leg and spin," said Burley. "He was going down on a spin when I hit him. I had my weight on him when he went down. There was no way I could stop and let his leg out."

The injury overshadowed a three-touchdown performance by Chuck Foreman, who rushed for 133 yards.

Broncos 17, Chargers 14

San Diego led throughout and it took a pair of second-half TD passes from Craig Morton to Haven Moses to pull the victory out for the Broncos.

Morton hit Moses with a 33-yarder midway through the third period and then again on an 8-yarder with just 96 seconds left in the game.

"We always try to find a way to win, one way or another," said Denver Coach Red Miller. "This was the other."

Raiders 34, Oilers 29

Four interceptions halted Houston threats and Oakland hung on to whip the Oilers in an offensive shootout. The Raiders came from behind three times, taking the lead for keeps on Clarence Davis' 3-yard TD run in the third period.

"Field position killed us," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips after the Oilers lost regular place kicker Toni Fritsch with a hamstring injury and had to use substitute kickers throughout the second half.

Rams 24, Packers 6

Dickey's injury on the last play of the game cast a pall over the Rams' victory, which kept Los Angeles one game in front of Atlanta in the NFC West.

The Packer passer, booed all day long, completed 18 of 36 for 276 yards while LA's Pat Haden, directing a ball-control offense, hit on 10 of 17 for 146.

Falcons 17, Lions 6

Trailing 6-0 after three periods, Atlanta rallied for the victory behind its dominant defense. Ortega took a recovered fumble 14 yards for the winning score and Pennywell's 20-yard return of the interception for a last-minute TD clinched it.

Steelers 35, Browns 31

Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes before being knocked out of the game with a shoulder injury. Playing with a cast on his broken left wrist, he finished with 13 completions in 21 attempts for 283 yards.

Cleveland backup Dave Mays threw three TD passes to Larry Poole as the Browns staged a late rally. Mays was replacing Sipe, who also left the game with an injured shoulder.

Colts 31, Bills 13

Lydell Mitchell scored a pair of touchdowns and Bert Jones piloted Baltimore to its eighth victory in nine starts.

Mitchell rushed for 82 yards and caught three passes for 60 more. Jones completed 12 of 23 for 180.

Dolphins 17, Patriots 5

A determined Miami defense bottled up New England's attack and helped the Dolphins stay one game back of Baltimore.

Miami limited Sam Cunningham to five catches for 28 yards.

Redskins 17, Eagles 14

Mark Moseley's 54-yard field goal with 3:41 to play lifted Washington past Philadelphia. The Redskins rallied for 10 points in the fourth period and then nailed down the victory when

49ers 10, Saints 7

A 33-yard overtime field goal by Ray Werschling carried San Francisco to its fourth straight victory following a string of five consecutive losses at the start of the season.

Wilbur Jackson gained 106 yards in 24 carries and running partner Del Williams had 110 in 25 tries for the 49ers.

Giants 10, Bucs 0

Tampa Bay absorbed its 23rd consecutive defeat over two seasons, bowing to New York. The expansion Bucs had the ball inside the 15-yard line half a dozen times but could not score.

Bobby Hammond scored the game's lone touchdown on a short plunge after a bad snap on a punt gave the Giants the ball at the 4-yard line.

Seahawks 17, Jets 0

Seattle posted the first shutout in its history as Jim Zorn threw a pair of touchdown passes.

Zorn, who completed 16 of 37 attempts for 219 yards, hit Don Testerman and David Sims for the Seahawk TDs. The Jets, with regular quarterback Richard Todd injured, managed only 25 yards passing.

Pistons Nip Washington

By The Associated Press

Until the final four seconds, Ralph Simpson was in Herb Brown's dog house. Then he shot his way out.

Simpson got into hot water with some bad passes earlier in the game and then unleashed a shot near the end that he wasn't supposed to. But he finally made up for his mistakes with the winning field goal as the Detroit Pistons edged the Washington Bullets 104-102 in the National Basketball Association Sunday night.

Simpson was pulled off the court by Detroit Coach Brown after his bad passing proved costly to the Pistons. When he later came back into the lineup, Simpson looked as though he would hurt the Pistons with his shooting as well.

In other NBA games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 97-95; the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Indiana Pacers 116-107; the Seattle SuperSonics walloped the New Orleans Jazz 117-83 and the Boston Celtics defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 127-119.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR TUESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A day for aggressive action! Aim for goals in a swift, sure manner. Details may not be crucially important but are still part of the pattern.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Try not to make drastic changes in your schedule. It could cause delays, disturb associates. Keep everything on an even keel.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Some complex situations indicated, but don't be anxious. Your innate competence and proficiency in handling the unforeseen should see you through.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Stellar influences some what restrictive. Avoid a tendency to vacillate, to give up on plans or projects before they have been given a fair trial.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Stimulating aspects now foster inventiveness. An excellent period in which to try out new devices and methods, to capitalize on unique ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Distractions and interruptions may upset usual routine, but take disturbances with your usual aplomb and a philosophical attitude. Do your own thinking - as you usually do.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Stellar influences somewhat mixed, but generally on the favorable side. You may get unexpected help in a personal problem through a business associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Don't overtax yourself now. No matter how busy, MAKE time for a quiet review of your present status. A new appraisal needed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Good opportunities indicated but you, of course, must be alert to them. Use trump cards strategically; aim to score as often as possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be careful of the way in which you make your moves, whom you include in your plans - and confidences. Wrong decisions could offset the best of effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Personal matters may trouble you. Review them calmly, completely. Perhaps you are overemphasizing certain angles. There is no real need for anxiety.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Mixed influences. Organize talents and know-how to promote current interests more efficiently. You may be looking too far ahead at the moment.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a bright mentality, lively imagination and unusual versatility. The woman, identified as Rapaphan Boonying, 40, was driving over the bridge and had almost crossed when a barrier stopped her from completing the crossing and trapped her in the raising span. She was rescued and hospitalized in good condition.

Deputies Check Two Weekend Mishaps

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office investigated two accidents over the weekend that resulted in injuries or citations.

The first accident occurred at 7:10 p.m. Sturday on Stoutsville Pike, three tenths of a mile west of Bolender-Pontious Road.

According to the report, Gary L. Hamilton, 24, Stoutsville, was west-bound on Stoutsville Pike, when the right side tires of his vehicle dropped onto the berm of the road.

The car went out of control, going 130 feet along the berm, then sliding 62 feet left across the roadway, and continued 55 feet along a ditch, coming to rest beside a telephone pole.

Hamilton suffered minor injuries, including contusions to his forehead and right arm.

The second accident occurred at 11:05 p.m. on State Route 104, a half mile south of Durrett Road.

According to the report, Carl W. Crable, 19, of 312 N. Court St., was northbound on SR 104, and was slowing to make a right turn into a private drive.

A car driven by Dennis M. Feller, 16, Grove City, was traveling southbound on SR 104. As he neared the Crable auto, the report states that he swerved to miss an animal that had run onto the roadway in his path. When he swerved his auto he went left of center and struck the Crable auto head-on.

Feller and three passengers in his car were taken to Mt. Carmel West Hospital in Columbus by the Jackson Twp. and Scioto Twp. Emergency Squads. They were treated for minor injuries and released. Two passengers in the Crable auto were taken to Berger Hospital by private motorists. They were David A. Cherrington, 17, 308 Maumee Drive, and Glen R. Folis, 17, 680 Garden Parkway. They were also treated and released.

3 Weekend Burglaries Occur In County

Three reports of aggravated burglary were filed in the Pickaway County Sheriff's Office over the weekend.

According to the report, the first occurred at the John Morris residence, 11301 Darby Creek Road. The culprits gained entry to the house by smashing a rear garage door window, then entered the house through the kitchen door leading to the garage.

Once inside, the thieves took cash, men's wrist watches, wire cutters, and they removed a 750 cc Honda motorcycle from the garage. They attempted to start the vehicle by rolling it down a hill, but after it failed to start, it was allowed to roll into a creek bed, where it was found by Deputy Lee R. Gray.

Total value of the missing merchandise, including the motorcycle, was set at $1147.

The second aggravated burglary occurred between 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday at the Irene Diehl residence, 572 Dunkle Road.

The thieves entered the residence by breaking the front door. Once inside, they took several items, including a pewter lamp, a gold pocket watch, a silver coffee service, jewelry, radios, a portable television set, and currency. No exact value was immediately available.

Deputy Terry Frazier took the first report of the incident, and was assisted at the scene by Detective J. Phillip Brown and Deputy Don Hamilton.

The final aggravated burglary occurred at the Gail R. Hollenback residence, 5046 Nelson Drive in Ashville, between 6:30 and 9:05 p.m. Sunday.

The report states that the thieves entered the house through an unlocked sliding glass door at the rear of the residence.

Once inside, the culprits took a tape player, a muzzle-loading rifle, a 20 gauge shotgun, a powder horn, a lamp, a jewelry box with jewelry, and two boxes of ammunition. No exact value has been set at this time.

Deputy Terry Frazier took the report. Detective J. Phillip Brown dusted the area for fingerprints.

Men Charged After Firearm Incident

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office investigated a shooting incident at 1:35 a.m. Sunday at the Curtis Hendrix residence 28842 State Route 159.

According to the report, Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Ken Henn, along with Auxiliary Deputy Leon Sims, arrived at the Hendrix residence to find Curtis Hendrix and Thomas Weaver who reportedly lives at the Hendrix residence struggling for control of a loaded shotgun. The men were inside the residence, and at one point during the struggle, the weapon discharged into the floor. The report states that Weaver had also fired two previous times at Hendrix prior to the struggle in the house.

The two men were disarmed. Hendrix was charged with disorderly conduct, and Weaver was charged with handling a firearm while intoxicated.

Indian River Grapefruit

For many years the oranges and grapefruit grown adjacent to the Indian River, which skirts the east coast of Florida have represented the "cream" of Florida citrus. This fruit is noted for its extraordinary uniformity of quality, excellent flavor, natural free-sweetened color, texture and ripeness. Indian River fruit has a natural color and beauty which needs no artificial treatment to make it more appealing.

Helpful Turkey Tips

Thanksgiving is a popular time for turkey dinners — and has become a year-round favorite. Here are some tips to help your family enjoy the festive bird.

How To Buy: There's a choice to suit every family. At your Kroger store, in addition to the familiar frozen turkeys, you will find a new look turkey — fresh. These turkeys and turkey parts — sold at a low price — are just above freezing (the ideal temperature to maintain fresh turkey quality until cooked). You'll notice a few ice crystals but the turkey has never been frozen. Allow 1 1/2 — 2 lb. per serving under 12 lb. Over 12 lb., allow 1 1/2 — 2 lb.

How To Prepare: Fresh Chub-Peck Turkeys may be kept in the refrigerator until ready to cook. Frozen turkeys should be in the freezer until ready to thaw.

How To Cook: Thaw frozen turkeys at room temperature or under hot water. Thaw in original plastic bag in refrigerator . . . 24 hours for each 5 pounds. Roast thawed turkey within 24 hours. And don't start the turkey until you're ready to roast it! When To Refrigerate or Freeze: Leftover turkey immediately after dinner. And remember — an extra "planned-over" meal from your turkey stretches your food dollar.
